ABSTRACT

This document comprises a list of periodicals, references, and sources recommended by the Far West Laboratory for Educational Research and Development for a "core" collection of information resources useful in meeting the information needs of those concerned with personnel and training in educational research, development, diffusion, and evaluation. For each item recommended the name of the producing agency, the price, and the level of priority (1 to 3) are given. (DDO)

PREFACE

In July 1972, the Far West Laboratory for Educational Research and Development initiated a project designed to develop and test procedures to evaluate and disseminate information on training of educational R&D personnel.

One objective of this design project was to provide recommendations for a "core" collection of information resources that would be useful in servicing the information needs of clients concerned with personnel and training activities related to educational research, development, diffusion and evaluation (RDD&E). The design project has produced three related products: (1) a collection of approximately 213 abstracts of significant literature, (2) a list of recommended books and monographs, and (3) this document which lists recommended periodicals, references, and sources.

Recommendations are made at three priority levels. The approximate costs of establishing and maintaining the recommended core collection of periodicals and references pertaining to educational RDD&E at three priority levels are as follows:

	First Year	Back Issues for 5 Years	Subsequent Years
Priority 1 (excluding ERIC) items	$ 1,250	$ 3,000	$ 1,000
Priority 1 & 2 items	2,500	3,850	1,500
Priority 1, 2 & 3 items	4,000	4,600	2,500
ERIC collection (plus Office of Education Research Reports and Manpower Research Inventory)	2,000	10,000	2,000

Of course, actual costs will depend on whether the "personnel and training" collection must stand alone or can be a "satellite" of a larger educational R&D collection. If it is a satellite, it is likely that the larger collection will contain many of the recommended items. In that case, the costs of establishing and maintainig a reasonably adequate and convenient collection of frequently used periodicals and references would probably be less than $1,000 annually. On the other hand, if a complete, "stand alone" collection, including back issues of journals and ERIC microfiche, as well as items for Priorities 1, 2 and 3, must be created, purchase costs would be around $21,000 for the first year and $4,500 annually. Note that these costs are only purchase prices. They do not include acquisition or processing costs.

As in the case of any list of recommended items, the selections are subjective. We asked one of the project's consultants, Dr. Frank Mattas, Director of the Educational Resources Center, San Mateo, and Director of the Bay Area California Information Network to prepare this list. We are grateful to him for taking the time to explore thoroughly the user needs information which the project had developed. His recommendations have been made on the basis of this information together with his experience in developing educational collections and in consulting on the establishment of other educational information centers.
